

Intermediate English - Communicating and interacting in English

Programme of the course

Knowing a language and being able to actually put that knowledge into practice is crucial for building bridges, solving problems and allowing smooth interaction.

To successfully communicate in a foreign language, you first need to gain confidence and expand your vocabulary. This practical course will focus on the use of the English language in real-life scenarios (such as answering phone calls and emails) and will include revision of basic grammatical forms and the use and understanding of more complex structures and vocabulary.

At the end of the course, participants will be expected to be able to understand and respond to an email or text in written and spoken English.
